FOREWORD BY THE MANAGING DIRECTOR

MS STELLA LAU KAH WAI

SEGi University & Colleges

Dear Class of 2023

On this joyous occasion, I applaud you for all that you've overcome and accomplished, as we all celebrate the boundless opportunities and successes that lie ahead of you.

Graduates, today marks one of the many successes and wins you're going to have in your life. We're so proud of you - all that you've achieved, and all that you will achieve in your very bright futures.

It goes without saying that success is not a one-man-show, you (and I) would not be where you (we) are today if not for the people around us – our family, loved ones, mentors, lecturers (and teachers), colleagues, friends and many more. I'd like to take this opportunity to invite you to reflect upon all the people that have contributed to your success today. Take a moment to tell them how grateful you are to them for all that they have done for you.

I thought it would also be timely that I introduce to you to a South-African word and philosophy while sharing with you some of my realisations in life.

"Ubuntu"

Ubuntu in simple terms means "I am, because you are". It means we are who we are because of the contributions of the people around us - those around us constitute who we are today.

"Ubuntu" is a profound philosophy for me because it made me realise that:

We are as great as we are today, not only because of the best of people around us, but also the worse – our foes who have taught us life's hardest and most painful lessons along the way. It reminds us to be thankful to everyone that has crossed our path in life (foes included) because without them – we wouldn't be who we are today.

If the people around us constitute us, we constitute those around us as well. In our daily actions we will inspire, motivate, and move those around us to grow, to expand and to become. It reminds us to be mindful of the individuals we are and the consequences of our positivity or negativity towards others. Choose to be positive towards others at all times.

Humanity as a whole is bound together. We achieve ourselves by sharing ourselves with others. This reminds us that our success depends on the success of the people around us (our colleagues, our friends, our family and more) – so always remember to live a life not only to enrich yourselves but devote your life to others around you as well.

In closing I hope you have picked up some inspirations from my personal reflections of the word "Ubuntu". I wish that you will carry within you:

A grateful heart. To always be thankful to the people you meet, the circumstances you find yourself in and the lessons you've learn along the way;

A positive spirit. To always have a positive outlook on life and seek to empower those around you;

A devoted attitude towards the greater good. To strive for excellence in all that you do for your family, community, country and the world.

Congratulations once again.

In addition, of the students studying in the UK, around 30% are international.

The University of Sunderland has major strengths in areas such as health, teacher education, business, technology, and the creative arts. It recently opened a new medical school, with 100 student doctors each year being trained alongside the next generation of nurses, paramedics, pharmacists and physiotherapists.

Around 1000 trainee teachers study at the University, ready to contribute at all stages – in pre-school, primary, secondary, and further education.

Students following degrees in areas such as hospitality and events pursue industry-leading and high-quality programmes to meet the needs of a global market.

Courses focus on applied learning, influenced by Sunderland's world-leading research status in tourism.

The Faculty of Arts and Creative Industries at Sunderland is also recognised for its range of courses in media, film and radio production, and art and design, again underpinned by cutting-edge research.

FOREWORD BY THE VICE-CHANCELLOR

PROFESSOR JANE HARRINGTON

University of Greenwich

As Vice-Chancellor of the University of Greenwich, I am delighted to welcome all of you, graduates, friends, families and teachers, to today's ceremony. Today we celebrate new graduates of a university with a 130-year history, whose many accolades include best modern university in London for graduate outcomes.

I also want to celebrate the university's long and successful partnership with SEGi. As partners, we have much in common. We share the same approach to education, equipping students with academic and professional skills that prepare them for fulfilling careers.

In many ways, our partnership reflects the continued globalisation of learning and work. At our three home campuses in the UK, for instance, we have students from more than 150 different countries. Our ability to attract staff, students and research partners from across the world is key to achieving our mission to provide high standards of teaching, learning and research that reflect the needs of communities in the UK and across the globe. Every year, students from SEGi come to the UK to pursue our wide range of Master's and PhD programmes.

As graduates of a UK university but based in Malaysia, you are uniquely placed to succeed in a globalised and ever-changing world economy. The opportunities that surround you are boundless. You have developed the skills to succeed in this environment: the ability to communicate, to think critically, to work in a team, to solve problems creatively, and, perhaps most importantly, to adapt and respond to change. You will join our global network of alumni, which includes thousands of University of Greenwich graduates in Malaysia. Our alumni community is there to support you at every stage of your future career.

Though they are more than 6,000 miles apart, the UK and Malaysia share a long and rich history of collaboration and partnership. Our two countries have always enjoyed a close commercial, political and diplomatic relationship. We both share a common attitude to trade and investment and a welcoming commercial environment. As the next generation of professionals and leaders, you will play a crucial part in future successes in our increasingly interconnected world.

As well as looking to the future, today is about taking a moment to take pride in your academic achievements. It is also a day of gratitude. I would like to give my own thanks to the family members who have joined us today. Your love, kindness and support has played a major part in bringing about today's celebration of success.

As new graduates, prepare to seek new challenges. It's a time to be confident, be inspired, be proud, be caring and, above all, aim high. I look forward to following and celebrating all your future successes. Congratulations on everything you have achieved and good luck for your future. Always be the best version of yourself. I know you will continue to make Greenwich proud.

*Did you know that Uni's hip and cool?
So come on over, we'll show you.
It's a place where hopes and dreams come

If it's in your heart, you can see it through.*

*Lifetime buddies, success stories, tell me more,
I need to know!
Different faces, reaching places,
This is my time, it's all up to me!*

*The best in you, made possible,
The best in us, we stand together,
We'll reach new heights and touch the sky,
The best in you, together we can fly.*

*Yeah!
Walaupun kami datang dari latar belakang
berlainan,
Kami disini juga,
Pengalaman berbeza, Bahasa dan juga
bangsa,
Tak mudah kami pecah.
Yeah!
Kita kejar, kecapai mimpi, gagahkan hati,
belajar berdikari,
Dengan teman di sisi, tak pernah rasa sepi.
Bring it back, c'mon.*
